

Fair Saturday

2019

Volunteer Guide

Every last Saturday of November

What is Fair Saturday?

24h to enjoy art, culture and get to know the social projects of your city. The objective is to provoke a massive mobilization around art and culture the day after Black Friday to understand, collaborate and meet first hand the artistic and social fabric of your city through an open, committed and fun festival.

This year, it will be held on Saturday, 30th November.

Volunteering is an essential pillar for the festival for it to be a success! Therefore, your role is very important. You will be the visible face of the team at the events taking place for Fair Saturday.

Fair Saturday Volunteering

Fair Saturday is transversal, social and open. All those people who want to participate are welcome! You can have previous cultural management or event organisation knowledge or not, be professional, student, retired ... The only requirement is to have the enthusiasm to participate! What the whole team does need is to believe in the project, actively participating or spreading the word, and being curious to discover the events you can find in the different corners of the city.

We are looking for young people, adults, women, men...culture enthusiasts at large!

Fair Saturday is an event that wants to awaken a massive mobilization around art and culture with a social impact. Through your participation in the festival, you will be part of an international volunteer network, being also able to meet the artists, cultural organisations and social projects of your city.

What does Fair Saturday offer you?

The opportunity to live the experience of an international festival with social impact from within, which will allow you to discover and learn from the cultural network of your city in a fun, open and participatory way.

2.

Accreditation certificate that proves your participation as a volunteer in the Fair Saturday Foundation, thanking you for your collaboration and involvement in the project.

3.

Participation in events of your interest. You can volunteer at the events that you are more interested in attending, always as far as possible. We will listen to you and be flexible!

4.

Meet new people that share your same interests but perhaps different points of view on art, culture and social projects.

What can you do?

There are different ways to help depending on your time, knowledge and interests

Event helper

You will give support to the artists and social projects in everything related to the organisation of the event, from helping them set up an exhibition to making sure the Fair Saturday manifesto is read and checking that everything is ready for the event to begin.

Information + Tickets

Your priority will be the dissemination and the information-sharing of the festival to citizens and visitors. This will involve explaining what the events are about, encouraging participation ... In short, spreading the word about the Fair Saturday spirit!

Fair Saturday events can be ticketed, with a closed price or through donations, which will depend on what the organiser decides. Your mission will be to control the attendance to these events, accounting the number of attendees and the social impact generated. This information is very important to get to know the impact that Fair Saturday events can have on our environment.

Area coordinator

You will be responsible for organising and coordinating a number/group of events in the same area. You need to be available to provide solutions in case there is an incident in any of the events happening in your area. You will also be responsible for gathering events' information.

Photographer

If you like photography and want to help us immortalize everything that is happening during this day, sign up as a photographer volunteer! You can tour the different cultural events of the festival with your camera and capture the best Fair Saturday moments! This is a very important role, since the Fair Saturday day images will be the ones allowing us to document the festival, showcasing its impact. Thanks to you we will have the festival in pictures, so always keep your camera ready!

When can you help?

2. Fair Saturday Day (30th November 2019)
